READY FOR TOMORROW

FIVE O'CLOCK, AT YOUR HOUSE

It was never the homework. It was finding the homework.

The work takes forty minutes. Working out what the work is takes the evening, because it is spread across a group chat, an email, a tutor's notebook and a timetable on the fridge.

Nobody in this house is arguing about algebra.

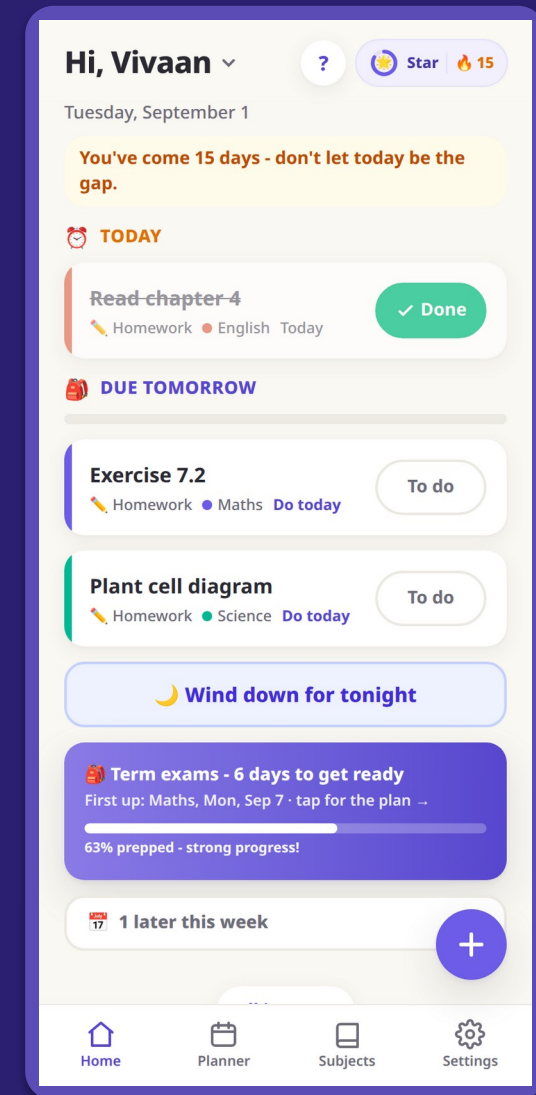

SIX O'CLOCK

He opens one list, and it is already there.

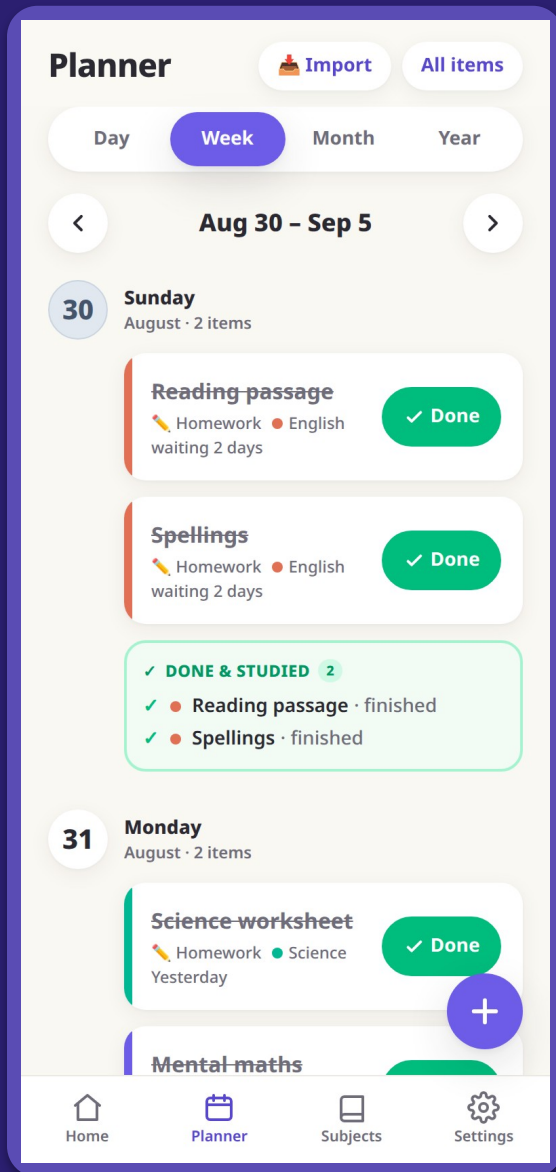

Today first, then what is due tomorrow, with the subject beside each line.

Whatever his teacher set arrives in it by itself. Tuesday football, Thursday piano and his tuition go in the same list, because that is the week he actually has.

He ticks a thing off and it goes quiet. The pile shrinks where he can see it, which is the part that gets him to the next one.

TUESDAY EVENING, HIS SIDE

TICKED, AND GONE QUIET

BY FRIDAY

The week stops living in your head.

A week at a time, with the finished things struck through and faded. An exam goes in as a list of topics and a ring fills as he revises, so what he sees is how ready he is rather than how many days are left.

Once the timetable is in, it packs the bag. Tomorrow is English, Art, Social Studies and PE, so it says the books and it says the kit, the night before rather than at half past seven in the morning.

WHAT IT COSTS YOU

₹0, if his teacher uses it.

Everything a teacher or tutor sends lands in his planner and he ticks it off, free. Not a trial: as long as she is his teacher in AllSet, it stays free.

₹149 a month adds the rest of his week, which is the work you put in yourselves and everything outside school: his activities, his exams, his timetable and the marks that fill out his report card. Up to three children on one account. There is a school-year price too, on the plans page inside the app.

Prices include GST and nothing is added at checkout. Razorpay takes the payment and AllSet never sees your card.

WHAT YOU ARE AGREEING TO

Decisions made once, not settings you have to find.

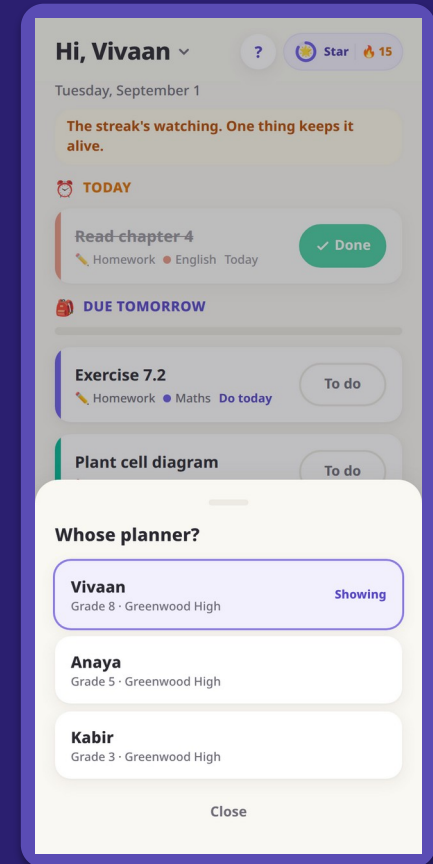

There is no leaderboard, anywhere. He is measured against his own record, never against the class and never against his sister.

A teacher who posts to a class sees how many finished, and never who. No child is named to the room.

No advertising, no advertising identifiers, no profiling. Nothing is sold, and nothing is used to train anything.

Up to three children on one account, each with their own planner, and brothers and sisters never see each other's work.

Those are our practices, and they are published in full at allset.avivmatrix.com.

ONE ACCOUNT, THREE PLANNERS

TONIGHT

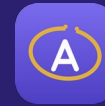

One thing, tonight.

Open it and put tomorrow's homework in.

That is the whole trial. If it survives the week, add his timetable, and it starts packing the bag the night before.
